NEW LEGISLATION HERALDS CHAMPION FOR VICTIMS AND SURVIVORS

A House of Commons Committee has today considered legislation which will pave the way for a Victims and Survivors Commissioner for Northern Ireland.

Speaking after the debate Victims Minister, David Hanson MP, said: "We have now taken a further step in highlighting the needs of all who have suffered during the troubles. The legislation will pave the way for the appointment of a victims and survivors champion who will build on the work of Bertha McDougall, the Interim Commissioner who took up her appointment in December 2005."

Paying tribute to the work of Mrs McDougall the Minister added:

"I am grateful for the work Bertha McDougall has been carrying out as Interim Commissioner. The government is committed to giving a strong voice to victims and survivors into the future.

"No-one can forget the past and all those who have suffered so much over the years, but we must also look to a better future. The legislation which has been debated today fulfils a commitment in the St Andrews Agreement and is an early sign of the Government's continuing commitment to progress in building a stable and peaceful future for all the people of Northern Ireland."

It is intended that the post of Commissioner for Victims and Survivors will be advertised within the next few weeks and it is anticipated that an appointment will be made early in the New Year.
