McCartney trial postponed

McCartney trial delayed

The trial of the man accused of murdering Robert McCartney outside a Belfast bar more than three years ago, was postponed at short notice today.

Terence Malachy Davison, 51, had been due to face the charge of killing the 33-year-old father-of-two at Belfast Crown Court.

Two other men - James McCormick, 39, and Joseph Gerard Emmanuel Fitzpatrick, 47 - were also due to face charges of affray in relation to the same incident in January 2005.

The hearing was adjourned only minutes before it was due to start because a defence barrister was unavoidably delayed at another trial.

Orlando Pownall QC, who successfully defended Sean Hoey, the man accused of murdering 29 people in the 1998 Omagh bomb, sent his apologies to the court for his non-appearance.

Trial judge Lord Justice Higgins said the delay was regrettable and agreed to start the trial tomorrow.

All it takes for justice to prevail is for good men/women to come forward and tell the truth of what they saw.
