Row over IRA memorials

A row has erupted in Down District Council over IRA memorials.

It followed a DUP motion demanding the removal of republican monuments from council-owned land last night.

They include a memorial in Downpatrick to IRA leader Colum Marks and a monument in Castlewellan which lists the names of IRA members killed in the Troubles.

The issue has now been referred to a working group.

But the DUP's Billy Walker is threatening legal action if the flying of the Union Flag is under threat.

Honouring an organisation which killed 1707 people including 47 children is pretty sick - but then there are some very sick individuals in our society.

On 23 Apr at 10:47 - John from Belfast said:

This is pretty fresh considering 5 miles up the road in Clough when marching season comes they fly UVF flags
