Stormont to debate collusion

Assembly members are expected to hold a debate later today on alleged RUC collusion with loyalist killers in north Belfast.

The SDLP has tabled a motion calling for an investigation into the findings of last year`s report by former Police Ombudsman Nuala O`Loan.

It found that Special Branch recruited UVF informers from Mount Vernon who were involved in a string of killings including the murder of Raymond McCord Junior.

The 22-year-old was beaten to death in Newtownabbey in 1997.

His father, Raymond McCord, says he will be keeping a close eye on the role unionist MLA`s play in this afternoon`s debate.

I'm looking forward to the debate on how a multitude of top provos have been on the payroll of the "British Establishment" It could get quite messy and contradictory for Irish Nationalism.

On 29 Apr at 07:43 - sean from belfast said:

Yeah karl should be messy...Questions like how was the IRA able to bring the british government to there knees.While uuuummm according to people like you the IRA leadership was awash with informers.Dont make me laugh son.What could get messy is why and how the UVF killed 24 people since 94 most of them protestants.

On 29 Apr at 09:30 - Subby to sean from belfast from Belfast said:

I think you'll find that intense political pressure from the USA and the fact that most IRA members couldn't leave the house without being under surveliance might have had something to do with it also. The people in NI were fed up and wanted to move on from these thugs on both sides. why and how the UVF killed 24 people since 94 most of them protestants - why and how the IRA killed HUNDREDS of people since 1969 most of them innocent people, most but not all, just trying to do their job

On 29 Apr at 10:21 - wondering from somewhere said:

'To their knees'? Is that why they left and give them a united Ireland then?
