Two men were tonight charged with murdering a UDA man during bloody feud between rival loyalists groups in Northern Ireland.

Tommy English, 39, was gunned down in front of his wife at his home in Newtownabbey, Co Antrim in October 2000.

The co-accused, aged 34 and 38, were arrested following an investigation by the Police Service of Northern Ireland's Historical Enquiries Team.

The pair, who are also charged with membership of a proscribed organisation, will appear in court in Belfast in the morning.
