No shrine at Long Kesh - DFM

Published Date: 04 November 2008

By Staff reporter

The Deputy First Minister Martin McGuinness has said he does not want the former Long Kesh prison site to be turned into a shrine.

Speaking during a debate in the Assembly yesterday on the plans for the redevelopment of the site, Mr. McGuinness said; "I want to see a viable centre which is oriented towards peace; not a shrine to anyone. If anything I want to see a shrine to peace," he said.
