It was the first time the band had played in Belfast in 33 years after three members -- lead singer Fran O'Toole, trumpet player Brian McCoy and guitarist Anthony Geraghty -- were murdered by the UVF in 1975.

Before the Grand Opera House concert, bassist and manager Steve Travers said: "This is a celebration of the Miami including the guys who were killed. One night they were killed but this is about the rest of their lives.... The Belfast audience was always massive for us. It's party time."
