McCord prepares for Hillary meeting in US

Sunday, March 11, 2007

By Stephen Breen

The campaigning father of a loyalist murder victim was last night preparing for his first meeting with US Presidential candidate Hillary Clinton.

Raymond McCord snr will travel to Washington tomorrow(correct) for a series of special meetings during his week-long visit.

The Newtownabbey man, who will be joined by other victims of security force collusion, will meet Mrs Clinton (left) and other senior US politicians.

Mr McCord, who gained 1,320 first preference votes in last Wednesday's election, will use the visit to highlight collusion between RUC officers and loyalist serial-killers.

Said Mr McCord: "I am not going to America to talk about my own case.

"I am going to the US to fight for all victims of collusion.

"I am looking forward to my meetings with the US politicians and I am pleased they have given ordinary people like me the chance to highlight our experiences of collusion."
