DURKAN TELLS HAIN TO KEEP AN EYE ON VICTIMS

SDLP Leader Mark Durkan MP put the following question to Secretary of State Peter Hain during Northern Ireland questions in the House of Commons on Wednesday:

“Could I commend the SOS and his officials on the appointment of panel on the past on top of his other good work in Northern Ireland. The panel might be guided by the Russian proverb which says: ‘ To dwell on the past is to lose one eye, to forget the past is to lose both eyes’.

“Does the Secretary of State agree that the panel’s work must be victim-centred and truly victim-sensitive and must address the needs of all victims and of the wider society in relation to truth, reconciliation and remembrance.”
