Evidence not speculation needed to convict Quinn Killers

Published: 12 November, 2007

Sinn Féin Newry Armagh MP Conor Murphy has dismissed the comments of John Grieve and Lord Laird as wholly political and utterly devoid of fact and said that if they have any information about the brutal murder of Paul Quinn should bring it forward to the Gardai or PSNI.

Mr Murphy said:

"The political bias of John Grieve and Lord Laird will do nothing to secure arrests and convictions for the brutal murder of Paul Quinn. If either of these two men have any real information about the murder they should bring it to the attention of the Gardai or PSNI.

"It is evidence not speculation that is needed to convict the killers of Paul Quinn. Sinn Fein have already said that anyone with information about this murder should bring it forward to allow due process and justice for the Quinn family." ENDS
